

Permanent Cosmetics vs. Microblading

Permanent Cosmetics tattooing is an innovative technique of applying micro insertions of natural organic color pigments into the dermal layer of the skin. Not only is this method medically proven, it is specifically designed to be safe. Other procedures called paramedical procedures include camouflage of vitiligo, birthmarks, scar tissue, and areola restoration.

Microblading is a semi-permanent solution to thin brows. Microblading is a procedure where organic colored pigment is implanted under your skin with a manual handheld tool instead of a traditional permanent cosmetics machine. Each hairline stroke of pigment implanted in the dermal layer mimics the look of real brow hairs. The effects of the procedure last up to 12 months.
